EPA is committed to working closely with response agencies and state and local officials to ensure the safety of citizens, respond to concerns and to evaluate impact to water contaminated by the Gold King Mine Release. EPA is sharing information as quickly as possible with the public as experts work to evaluate any effects the spill may have on drinking water, public health, agriculture, fish and wildlife. Please see our website for the latest information: <http://www2.epa.gov/goldkingmine>
Regular updates will be posted as they are available.

Comments: Please the Ute tribes don't need to sign a form for future waivers of damages incurred at the gold mine. This is the EPA's doing and to ask the people to sign future waivers of liability is obscene and offensive. I once had a dream of working for the EPA in hopes of bettering myself and the environment. I'm sad to say I won't be seeking employment with a government organization vying for signatures of future damage claim waivers. You are here to help, not cover your ass, please don't peruse this course of action. I still have hope that the EPA will make things right.
